Paul B. Robertson Selected as WDS Foundation Distinguished Professor in Dentistry

by Connie Lehmen

Dr. Paul B. Robertson, who served as Dean of the University of Washington School of Dentistry for nine years until June 30, 2001, has just been appointed the Washington Dental Service Foundation Distinguished Professor in Dentistry. Established in 1985 with funds provided by the Washington Dental Service Foundation and matched by the State of Washington, the purpose of the Distinguished Professorship is to improve the quality of dental health, education and scientific knowledge for the benefit of the public and dental community.

Dr. Robertson will hold this post until 2004, at which time his tenure will culminate in a symposium featuring a panel of internationally recognized speakers who will address current issues affecting the dental health care profession. After three years of planning, this two-day event will focus on cutting-edge clinical science, and subsequent publications will represent a major contribution to dental health care literature. Topics will be directly applicable to clinical practice, preview future changes in dentistry and research, and will be relevant to the entire dental team.

"With Dr. Robertson's international reputation and connections and his enormous contributions to dental education and research at the University of Washington School of Dentistry, he is ideally qualified for this award," says Dr. James Steiner, acting dean of the School of Dentistry, clinical professor of endodontics and holder of the Washington Dental Service (WDS) Endowed Chair in Dentistry. "We expect his symposium to be an innovative, highly creative one which will focus on the dental practice of the future. We are very fortunate to have this professorship funded by the WDSF, enabling us to produce a symposium that will have far-reaching, remarkable impact on the future of dentistry."

Robertson, who just last June became the recipient of the Dean's Club Honorary Life Member Award, presented annually to an individual who has given "outstanding service" to the University of Washington School of Dentistry, received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Texas at Austin and his D.D.S. degree from the University of Texas Dental Branch at Houston. Following graduation, he served as a General Dental Officer in the United States Air Force for three years. He then continued his education, earning his Certificate in Periodontics and a Master of Science in Experimental Pathology from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

In 1972, Dr. Robertson joined the faculty at the University of Alabama School of Dentistry as Assistant Professor in the Department of Periodontics and Institute of

President's Message

THE FUTURE OF DENTISTRY

Over the course of the last several months, I have had the opportunity to interact with several of our new alumni and numerous dental students at various dental school activities. I must say that I am extremely impressed with the desire and drive these people possess.

I cherish the time spent with those that have experienced the dental school in more recent times. Remembering the experiences of dental school helps me put my personal and professional life in some perspective.

Hearing stories about significant changes that have occurred to improve the lives of dental students and broaden their practical expertise, while maintaining a high level of clinical competence and desire to strive for the perfect line angle, is extremely comforting.

As I recall, during my dental school days, most of us were consumed with the daily grind of trying to survive the rigors of dental school academics. Free time seemed limited to only an occasional few hours for leisure activities.

I am quite certain that present day dental students have no fewer class hours, and yet they find the time to devote innumerable hours to volunteer activities, political activism, and creating dental outreach programs such as Husky Smiles to improve dental access to under served areas.

Given what I have seen and heard in my recent interactions with our younger colleagues, we can find cheer in knowing that our future is in very competent and creative hands for years to come. Let's take the energy and creativity these people possess and help them channel a portion of it into advancing the profession that has been part of our lives for so long.

Our support of these activities is of paramount importance if we wish to encourage further creative development; especially given the pressure these students feel from the State's proposed ten percent tuition increase for dental graduate students.

Speaking to the future of dentistry, by the time you receive this newsletter we should have a new dean. The search to fill the vacancy left by Dean Robertson's retirement from the deanship has been tireless. Thanks to those who have taken the time to meet the candidates, give input, and serve on the search committee.

We look forward to working with our new dean and to your input regarding improving our alma mater.

Mark Grace, '94

The Dean's Holiday Party

Acting Dean James Steiner and Pauline Steiner hosted the annual dean's holiday party in the ballroom of the University Tower Hotel on Wednesday, December 12, 2001. Over 300 faculty, staff, students, alumni and friends of the School of Dentistry attended. The evening included socializing, great food and beverages, and relaxing to the sounds of elegant harp music. It was a wonderful evening as guests enjoyed the hospitality of the Steiner's. Delicious hors d'oeuvres and desserts were enjoyed. Everyone seemed to be ready to enjoy the holiday season after all the emotions of dealing with September 11th in their lives. As the year concluded, we are all grateful for the leadership of Dean James Steiner at the UW School of Dentistry.

Dean's Column

Since the passage of I-200 in November 1998, the UW Board of Regents, UW President Richard McCormick, the UW Committee on Diversity, the Offices of Student Affairs and of Minority Affairs, as well as all the schools and departments of this excellent university are struggling with the problem of decreased enrollment of underrepresented minority students. In September 1999, the number of new minority freshmen at the UW dropped almost 32 percent. No longer can we use race or ethnicity as an admissions criteria to diversify our student body.

At the core of the goal to increase diversity in the UW student population, is the realization that the educational experience is enhanced by a diverse student body. As recognized by the UW Board of Regents in their January 1998 Statement on Diversity, "Students educate each other, in the classroom and in many informal settings; they challenge one another's assumptions, they broaden one another's range of experience, and they teach one another to see the world from varied perspectives. Although the University should and does seek diversity of many kinds, racial and cultural diversity must be a part of the mix."

You have undoubtedly heard that the tuitions for UW professional schools are likely to increase significantly. The University and the School of Dentistry are exploring sources of financial assistance for underrepresented minority students, but within the guidelines of the somewhat unclear new legislation. We also seek to continue and to enhance community outreach and mentoring programs to attract and retain bright young students from diverse backgrounds and cultures. These endeavors will be long-term efforts to correct a longstanding problem.

This summer's UW School of Dentistry Dental Camp, spearheaded by Dr. Douglass Jackson with $20,000 seed money from the Washington Dental Service Foundation and assistance from the GEAR UP Summer Institute, has as its goal, increasing minority middle school student's interest in dentistry and oral health. The curriculum will include pre-camp classroom orientation, 'playing' dentist in the simulation laboratory, and 'follow-up' volunteer mentoring. Hopefully, these students will be encouraged to participate in college preparatory programs, so essential for many to realize their full potential.

I welcome suggestions from our alumni, staff and faculty as we strive to make a high quality dental education available to all qualified applicants in the region who wish to attend the UW School of Dentistry.

Dental Alumni Football Homecoming

The Dental Alumni homecoming weekend celebration concluded with the annual brunch and game on Saturday, November 17, 2001. This year had added excitement as it was the Apple Cup Game against Washington State. The brunch was held at the Center for Urban Horticulture. One hundred and fifty of our Alumni enjoyed socializing, great food, and a great game. It was a beautiful Fall day and all enjoyed being in the loud and wild crowd of 74,442 fans. The Huskies played a great game and beat the visiting Cougars 26-14. Dr. Mark Grace '94, the Dental Alumni President, welcomed the group to the event.

Acting Dean, James Steiner, also addressed the event. The victory gave the Huskies the number 2 spot in the conference and a Holiday Bowl berth against 5th ranked Texas.

Mentor Reception a Great Success

The UW School of Dentistry, the UW Dental Alumni Association and the Washington State Dental Association teamed together once again to sponsor a Mentor Reception and Open House at the Dental School. The event was held on Friday, November 16, 2001 and drew more than 300 to the D1 Simulation Clinic. It was the perfect setting for students, mentors, faculty, alumni and members of the professional community to draw together for an evening of socializing, learning and getting acquainted.

Dr. James N. Sledge ('79)

A Life Devoted to Service

by Randy Newquist

Jim and Salli boating on Lake Coeur D'Alene.

After graduating from Whitworth College, Dr. James Sledge spent the 1968-69 year on the Island of Borneo in the Peace Corps. He found serving in the Peace Corps was a time of great personal growth as he and others worked with several tribes and the government to improve the protein content of the peoples' diet. One of the tribes, the Ibans, were known as famous headhunters, but Dr. Sledge found them to be very hospitable and enjoyable to work with.

Upon returning to the U.S., Dr. Sledge went to work in the pharmaceutical industry for Abbott Laboratories. It was during this time in his life that he became interested in dentistry as a career. He found himself playing recreation-league basketball with a group of physicians and dentists who encouraged him to apply to dental school. After much thought, he felt it was the right direction to take in his life.

So at the age of 30, he began dental school at the University of Washington. Dr. Sledge was married and had two children, a son and daughter. His dental school class had ten dental students that were 30 years or older. The different backgrounds gave the class a unique flavor. Even though dental school was demanding and required a balance between studying and family life, Dr. Sledge found his four years at dental school to be very rewarding and memorable. In speaking of dental school, he recalls, "I especially remember the elaborate skits that we cooked up, including one where we motorized one of the student instrument carts and ran it through Dr. Natkin's lecture class. I made many wonderful friendships that I will always treasure." Dr. Sledge graduated from the University of Washington in 1979.

As dental school ended, so did his first marriage. But he and his former spouse pledged to work together as joint parents and moved to Spokane where they both had family nearby. Dr. Sledge and a classmate, Bob Parker, decided to set up a new practice in downtown Spokane, disregarding those who warned them about the negative aspects of a partnership. Although it was a struggle to set up a practice in the late 1970's and early 1980's, they managed to stay in some form of partnership and remain friends for more than 20 years.

To help pay the bills in his early years of practice, Dr. Sledge taught pharmacology and worked in the clinic at Eastern Washington University's Dental Hygiene Department. It was at EWU that he met the woman who would become the love of his life. Salli (Salli Harris Sledge, RDH, PhD) was a full-time professor at the School and had two children who were about the same age as his. The two families were slow in blending, but eventually everything came together and they took all four kids and ran off to Kauai to get married. It made for a busy household filled with participation in sports, piano lessons, scouts/campfire, and church activities. For several years, Dr. Sledge spent his vacations on scout outings to Canada or on canoe trips. The family enjoyed skiing trips and spending time at the family lake cabin on Salli and Jim enjoying Ireland in 1998.

Lake Coeur D'Alene. One summer they piled the four children into a family station wagon and towing a tent trailer, toured the southwest. It was a trip everybody still talks about.

Dr. Sledge became involved in the local dental society and in the community. Having a business partner allowed him to leave early some days to coach soccer or to participate in a scouting project. Before long, he found himself on several boards including United Way and chairing dental society committees. He found the camaraderie with colleagues at monthly dental meetings provided a valuable opportunity to share ideas and experiences. He would always encourage others to stay involved and to share their experiences with the younger colleagues. While serving on a task force which looked at the dental needs in Spokane in the mid-1980's, Dr. Sledge helped start a volunteer clinic that operated on Wednesday nights to provide dental services to the under served. He ran that clinic for 13 years until it was folded into a new clinic in downtown Spokane run by the Community Health Association of Spokane (CHAS). It was gratifying to see so many dentists freely giving of their time to help those in need.

Jim and Salli have always enjoyed traveling together. Their travels have included backpacking in Germany and Austria; relaxing at their condo in Kona; taking in the breathtaking views of Ireland, Scotland and England; and visiting the Caribbean. Recently they enjoyed a week of skiing and touring in Switzerland. Dr. Sledge's love of traveling and interest in helping others has taken him to the Dominican Republic with his good friend Dr. Jeffrey Parrish and to Bangladesh to set up a dental clinic. As he winds down his practice over the next several years, he hopes to do more volunteer work both at home and abroad. Currently, Dr. Sledge sees patients three days a week and has a great associate, Amir Ganji, who sees patients four days a week.

Jim and Salli have four grown children (all in their 30's) and one grandson. They feel so blessed to have 3 of the 4 living in Spokane.

Jim and Salli in the North Cascades.

Mark is a computer specialist with a large pathology group; Jamey is completing his training as a physician's assistant at OHSU in Portland; Michele is an audiologist in an ENT clinic; and Thomasin is a podiatrist. They have just completed a new lake house and hope that it will continue to serve as a family gathering place. Their extended family is truly unique in that it includes both former spouses, their new families, and even their siblings and parents. They often celebrate holidays, birthdays, and other special events together. Many friends have suggested that they write a book on "our very different family." Dr. Sledge had to give up playing soccer and racquetball due to injuries, but he still enjoys skiing and sailing. One day, he and Salli would like to take up golf. They also have a goal to go sailing in the Caribbean.

Dr. Sledge has enjoyed serving on the Board of Trustees for Washington Dental Service Foundation the past six years and is currently the chair of the Board. He has been involved in some interesting things to increase access to care and promote oral health in the State of Washington. The Foundation has also recently had a task force looking at issues of dental education and should be making a report in the near future. Dr. Sledge is excited about the opportunities that the Foundation will have to partner with the University of Washington School of Dentistry, the WSDA, and other organizations that all have an interest in oral health. "I think we all agree that there isn't enough money or professionals to fix everyone's dental problems, so we must be willing to try new things. It is encouraging that oral health is finally getting some attention in the press with the Surgeon General's report, and we need to build on that."

Dr. Sledge was honored as the 1990 Dentist-Citizen of the Year, has served on several WSDA committees and currently is a delegate to the WSDA House. He has just completed a term as ADA delegate, and feels honored to be a Fellow in the American College of Dentists, the International College of Dentists, and the Pierre Fauchard Academy. Recently he was honored by being named the Sister

Dr. Sledge working on patients in Bangladesh.

Peter Claver Award recipient by Sacred Heart Hospital in Spokane.

Dr. Sledge has centered his life around being of service to others. He saw a quote sometime ago that he feels encompasses what he has always tried to do. It says, "I am only one, but I am one. I cannot do everything, but I can do something. What I can do, I ought to do and what I ought to do by the grace of God I will do." He feels if we listen to that small voice inside of us, each of us has a place, purpose and thing to do. We need to ask and then do it.

We are grateful to Dr. James Sledge for the example that he is to all. He believes in living life to the fullest. He continues to be involved in the professional side of dentistry and encourages all to do the same.

Dr. Alton W. Moore Selected For UW School Of Dentistry Dean's Club Honorary Life Member Award

Dr. Alton W. Moore, Dean Emeritus of the UW School of Dentistry and Professor Emeritus of its Department of Orthodontics, has been selected to receive the School of Dentistry Dean's Club Honorary Life Member Award. Bestowed annually on an individual who has given "outstanding service" to the University of Washington School of Dentistry, the award will be presented on June 7, at the Annual Dean's Club Dinner at the Columbia Tower Club.

When the Department of Orthodontics was founded in 1948, Dr. Moore was appointed Associate Professor and Chairman. Over the next thirty-two years he served as Chair of Orthodontics until 1966, Associate Dean of the School through 1976, and Dean from 1977 to 1980. During this time the department became the model for orthodontic graduate education and research throughout the world.

Central to the principles upon which the department was founded was the integration of physical, biological and clinical sciences in its research and teaching programs. Investigation in areas as diverse as creation of radiographic cephalometric standards and techniques, analysis of orthodontic and orthognathic surgical treatment outcomes, experimental facial growth modification, and study of temporomandibular joint and pathology has contributed significantly to the advancement of knowledge about craniofacial systems.

Dr. Moore received his dental degree from the University of California at San Francisco in 1941; served an internship at Zoller Memorial Dental Clinic, University of Chicago; and launched his academic career at the University of Louisville, where he taught in the Department of Oral Pathology and Oral Diagnosis from 1942 to 1944. Dr. Moore completed his orthodontic education at the University of Illinois in 1945 under the late Dr. Allan Brodie. He then served for three years on the University of Illinois Orthodontic faculty while simultaneously earning a Master of Science degree.

In June of 2000, Dr. Moore was the featured speaker at the 20th Anniversary of a lectureship bearing his name, where it was announced that $1.5 million had been pledged to establish the Alton W. Moore and Richard A. Riedel Chair in Orthodontics. According to Dr. Peter Shapiro, the Moore/Riedel Fund Chair, "Although Dr. Moore had a profound influence on the specialty of orthodontics, his most important role was that of mentor. His encouragement, support and stimulation of students, junior faculty members and professional colleagues have contributed immeasurably to the advancement of orthodontics. Further, he has enhanced the personal lives and professional careers of those who have been fortunate enough to have come under his influence."

Dr. Moore currently resides with his wife, Myrna, in the Sand Point neighborhood of Seattle.

DAN G. MIDDAUGH DENTAL STUDENT PROFESSIONAL SERVICE AWARD

On January 29, 2002, a small group of students from the UW School of Dentistry met for dinner with Dan Middaugh, Associate Dean for Continuing Dental Education and Alumni Services; Steve Hardymon, Executive Director of WSDA; Mark Grace, President of the UW Dental Alumni Association; and Ross Fraker, President of Seattle-King County Dental Society. On this occasion, Dr. Middaugh presented each student a check for $1,000 in recognition of their professional service. Also in attendance at the event was Randy Newquist, the Associate Director of Dental Alumni & Development; and Walt Saunders, the Major Gift Officer for the School of Dentistry.

The dinner was held in a private banquet room at Ray's Boathouse Restaurant in Ballard overlooking Puget Sound. Even though the dinner was a social one, the students and the professional leaders were able to discuss issues of mutual interest. Students gained valuable insight into the role and importance of organized dentistry. Dan Middaugh told the assembled group, "I have established this recognition award to encourage students to continue their involvement in organized dentistry as dental students and as practicing members of the profession after graduation."

For ten consecutive years, Associate Dean Middaugh will contribute $5,000 to recognize and reward the professional service of the Presidents of the first, second, third, and fourth year dental classes, and the President of the Dental Student Council. He will host a dinner and continue to invite leaders from organized dentistry together with student leaders.

A Dance to Remember

In the tradition of the Grand Ball, the UW School of Dentistry Class of 2003 sponsored a Formal Winter Ball on Saturday, February 2, 2002 at the Olympic Four Seasons Hotel in downtown Seattle. The School has had winter dances in the past, but the Class of 2003 wanted to make the dance a more elegant affair.

The response by the School was wonderful. Over two hundred students, faculty, staff and alumni attended the Winter Ball. The evening included socializing, dancing, a delicious dessert buffet, group tango lessons and a performance by third year dental student Garin Liu and partner Mary Brannigan.

The following students helped make this event a great success: Class of 2003- Teresa Vong, Jeff Lingenbrink,

Dental Research. In 1973, he was recruited as Associate Professor to the University of Texas Dental Branch at Houston, where he held appointments in the Department of Periodontology, the Dental Science Institute, and the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences. He also participated in private practice as a periodontal specialist from 1973-1976.

His first administrative post was Chair of the Department of Periodontology at the University of Connecticut School of Dental Medicine from 1976-1983, where he was appointed to the faculty as a full professor. Next he served five years as Professor and Chair of the Department of Stomatology at the University of California at San Francisco. In 1988, he became Dean and Professor of the Faculty of Dentistry at the University of British Columbia and also the Coordinator of Health Sciences.

An experienced and able administrator, he was appointed Dean of the University of Washington School of Dentistry in 1992. Robertson chaired the Board of Health Sciences Deans from 1994-2001, the Board of Deans from 1996-1997, the Search Committee for the Dean of Pharmacy in 1995, the Search Committee for the Vice President of Medical Affairs and Dean of the School of Medicine in 1997, the Search Committee for the Provost in 1997, and the Search Committee for the Vice President for Development and Alumni Relations in 2000.

Among his other many honors, Robertson is a Fellow of the American College of Dentists, the International College of Dentists, and the Pierre Fauchard Academy. He is a member of the American Dental Association, the Washington State Dental Association, the Seattle-King County Dental Society, the American Academy of Periodontology, the International Association for Dental Research, and the American Association for Dental Research, serving as President of AADR in 1998. In 1995, he was the recipient of the WSDA President's Award in recognition of his outstanding contributions to dentistry in the State of Washington.

Past Distinguished Professors in Dentistry include Professor Emeritus Dr. Samuel F. Dworkin, School of Dentistry Oral Medicine; Dr. Charles L. Bolender, Past Chair of the Department of Prosthodontics; Dr. Karl-Ake Omnell, Dean Emeritus of the School of Dentistry; and Dr. Roy C. Page, Professor of Periodontics, Director of the Regional Clinical Dental Research Center, and Associate Dean for Research in the School of Dentistry.

Last June, at the time of his retirement as dean, professionals from myriad dental agencies and organizations who benefited from his nine years as dean, spoke of his excellent working relationship with students, faculty, and the dental community, and of his success in garnering greater national recognition for the University of Washington School of Dentistry. Dr. Robertson remains on the faculty, teaching predoctoral and graduate students and conducting research on patterns of oral health care in the United States.

In recognition of the important role that corporate donors play in the School's continuing success, the Dental Alumni News profiles companies and organizations that provide their strong support to the School.

Corporate Friend: NORDIC

In 1986 the Washington State Dental Association (WSDA) began looking for a professional liability insurance company to offer local service and excellent benefits. They wanted stable and understandable rates, premium and loss information, and dentist representation. When they didn't find a company that could meet all their needs, they considered starting their own company. After discussions with the Insurance Department, they decided to form an alliance with the state's physician-owned professional liability carrier. In 1989, the WSDA partnered with Physicians Insurance, A Mutual Company, the leading provider of professional liability insurance for physicians, to form Northwest Dentists Insurance Company (NORDIC).

Since the beginning, local dentists have been members of the board of directors and the claims, risk management, and underwriting committees. These dentists evaluate claims, develop new office forms, create risk management seminars, and review and update policies. No other dental professional liability company in the Northwest involves local dentists on their board and committees. NORDIC is a member of the University of Washington School of Dentistry Dean's Club and has been an active supporter of the School of Dentistry for many years.

Associate Vice President Cary Ecker attributes NORDIC's continual success to dentist involvement, dentist commitment, and an experienced claims, risk management, and underwriting staff. "There's not another company that works with and for dentists so personally and productively."

Ecker, an avid skier, tennis player, and windsurfer is currently training for a 1/2 Ironman triathlon. He volunteered for five years for the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Washington, where he helped provide wishes (such as trips to Australia and Disneyworld, computers, and hot tubs) for many children with life-threatening illnesses. He spent 8 years at Piper Jaffray as an investment professional and recently earned his master's degree in finance at Seattle University. Since joining NORDIC two years ago, Ecker has continued to develop fruitful relationships with Northwest dentists and the UW School of Dentistry.

Senior Fellow Dr. Ozlem Yilmaz named Magnuson Scholar and KO8 recipient

A senior fellow in the Department of Oral Biology at the University of Washington School of Dentistry has received two different and prestigious honors. Dr. Ozlem Yilmaz has been named a Magnuson Scholar by the university, and awarded a KO8 grant by the National Institutes of Health.

Yilmaz studies periodontal disease, an inflammatory infection that affects up to 50 million people in the United States. She has discovered a key means by which the bacteria that cause periodontal disease; prophyromonas gingivalis, can attach to host cells and initiate the destructive process. Agents designed to inhibit the attachment step could prevent bacterial survival and thus eliminate or reduce the severity of the disease.

Yilmaz says that "Early in my Ph.D., I discovered the more I learned about the workings of oral pathogenic processes, the more interested I became. Pathogenic mechanisms of periodontal pathogens such as p.gingivalis are under intense scrutiny, however significant gaps exist in our understanding of the initial interactions between p.gingivalis and gingival epithelial cells. The outcome of this molecular dialog can contribute to either the maintenance of gingival health or the initiation of disease.

I believe our studies will not only contribute to the conceptual framework of the pathogenesis of periodontal diseases, but may also allow novel approaches to the control of p.gingivalis infection, and thus improve the quality of life for the at-risk populations."

"Everyone here is delighted that the importance of this work has been recognized by NIH through the clinician scientist award mechanism," says Dr. Kenneth Izutsu, Professor and Chairman of Oral Biology. Dr. Yilmaz's work has been conducted in the laboratory of Dr. Richard Lamont, Professor of Oral Biology, since 1999.

The prestigious five-year KO8 award is given to clinical scientists to provide support for their transition into independent researchers. The award provides a flexible approach to training for clinical investigators (M.D., D.V.M., or other clinical degree) who, in addition to being excellent physicians, are excellent researchers committed to an academic research career. It supports up to five years of a mentored research experience, as well as related career development activities, in basic, clinical or behavioral science areas. Dr. Yilmaz's award of approximately $630,000 over five years, will allow her to pursue her studies of periodontal disease.

Yilmaz was one of six Magnuson Scholars that the university names each year, one from each of the six UW health sciences schools. The Magnuson Scholars are selected on the basis of their academic performance and their potential contributions to research in the health sciences. The late Senator Warren G. Magnuson, in whose name the program was established, was committed to improving the nation's health through biomedical research and was instrumental in establishing the National Institutes of Health, Medicare and Medicaid during his long career in the senate.

Yilmaz, born and raised in Istanbul, Turkey, obtained her D.D.S. degree from Istanbul University School of Dentistry in 1990. She practiced privately and worked at a regional hospital, providing dental services in the main hospital clinic and rural community clinics. For five years she was also active in public education and oral disease prevention programs. When she married her husband, Carl Turk, an electrical engineer, she moved to the Seattle area and in 1997 began Ph.D. studies in the Oral Biology Department of the School of Dentistry. After intense theoretical and practical training in biomedical research, she focused her studies on invasion mechanisms of the bacterium prophyromonas gingivalis.

Yilmaz, who also actively participates in dental research conferences, expects to complete her studies this spring and begin her transition into an independent researcher. Yilmaz says she is also interested in teaching and interacting with younger scientists and in encouraging more dentists to spend time on research. She and her husband live in Seattle and enjoy long, wet northwest hikes with their beagle, Charlie.

Distinguished Service Award Received by Peter K. Domoto, DDS, MPH

Professor and Chair of the Department of Pediatric Dentistry Dr. Peter Domoto was presented with the “Distinguished Service Award” by Kathleen Sellick, Executive Director of the University of Washington Medical Center Administration, during the February 17, 2002 Martin Luther King, Jr. Tribute Program at the Magnuson Health Sciences Center.

Honoring individuals with longstanding commitment to address community needs and develop and implement significant programs to improve the human condition, this award fittingly honors a man who believes that good dental care is something all children should have, no matter where they live or what their economic status.

Early in his career, Domoto developed outreach programs that assigned dental students to clinics for disadvantaged children as part of their training. He then expanded the outreach to include a two-week elective pediatric dentistry rotation at the Yakima Valley Farm Workers Clinics. These programs not only provide needed dental care to under served children, but also sensitize future dentists to the needs of these children. Other public service activities include his efforts to eliminate baby bottle tooth decay; work with the Special Supplemental Food Program for women, infants, and children throughout Washington state to prevent dental cavities in infants and toddlers; and an innovative training video in both English and Spanish that teaches mothers and caretakers in the program how to identify early tooth decay.

As Chair of the Children’s Dental Access Task Force to collect reliable statewide information on the amount of oral disease in children, he organized his own teams of dental students, faculty, and dentists and sent them out to examine third graders at selected schools in each of Washington’s 39 counties. Dr. Domoto, himself, performed exams in eight different schools in four counties, traveling more than a thousand miles around the state.

His survey found that 20 percent of the children are experiencing more than 80 percent of the oral disease, and those most at risk are members of ethnic minorities who face financial barriers to dental care. Domoto’s advocacy led to a pilot program in Spokane, where 80 private practitioners have agreed to treat low income, at-risk children in their community.

Dr. Domoto was nominated for this award by the Tribute Organizing Committee.

Dr. Douglass L. Jackson Receives the Community Volunteer Recognition Award

During the 2002 Martin Luther King, Jr. Tribute Program on February 17, Douglass L. Jackson, Assistant Professor in the Department of Oral Medicine, was one of eight University of Washington faculty members and students to be presented with the 2002 Martin Luther King Jr. Community Volunteer Recognition Award. This award honors individuals who make a career of developing and implementing significant programs to improve the human condition and who make an outstanding effort to protect and empower all individuals.

Douglass L. Jackson, Jr., DMD, MS, Ph D, is a key figure in the school due to his commitment and activities regarding underrepresented students. He devotes a great deal of time and energy to help undergraduate and graduate students with their research and is also a much appreciated mentor and role model to minority students. In 1997 and 1998, he volunteered as the Science Fair Judge, “Science Laboratory and Invention Convention” at the Shoreline School District. In 1999, he contributed to “A Way of Life: Research,” an NIH/NIDCR student recruiting video.

Dr. Jackson makes a bimonthly trip to Longview with other UW faculty, staff, and student volunteers as part of a community partnership between the UW and a number of organizations, including Kaiser Permanente. The goal is to provide dental care for those who would not normally have access to it. Dr. Jackson donates his time and knowledge to better serve the oral health of the needy population, including providing IV sedation for treatment of patients with extreme dental needs or extremely fearful patients. He volunteered at the first “Minority Health and Health Disparities Fair,” sponsored by UW Health Sciences Minority Student Programs and Bridges Initiative UW 2001.

Dr. Jackson makes an enormous contribution to the patients in the Pediatric Dental Clinic, the Dental Fears Clinic, and in the Oral Medicine Clinic. He gives of his special knowledge and training as a dental anesthesiologist to help make treatment possible for otherwise hard to treat patients.
